

Mouse In the House

By Steve , Lang

At the end of the nesting season some trail monitors clean out their boxes and then prop the doors open to prevent mice from moving in for the winter.

My wife and I like to keep our doors shut all year long. We think the boxes have a longer life span if they don't get filled with snow and rain.

Closed boxes also give birds like Chickadees and Downy Woodpeckers a place for shelter. They also give early bluebirds a place to shelter and consider using for their site come spring.

Of our 86 boxes last year we only had 3 with nesting mice that we had to empty

Mouse In the House?

By Steve Lang

At the end of the nesting season some trail monitors clean out their boxes and then prop the doors open to prevent mice from moving in for the winter.

My wife and I like to keep our doors shut all year long. We think the boxes have a longer life span if they don't get filled with snow and rain.

Closed boxes also give birds like Chickadees and Downy Woodpeckers a place for shelter. They also give early bluebirds a place to shelter and consider using for their site come spring.

Of our 86 boxes last year we only had 3 with nesting mice that we had to empty.